Part B — Content Monitoring and Moderation

How we monitor content

SwordPay does not use end-to-end encryption. Every piece of content shared on SwordPay — including in direct messages — is visible to our trained moderation team. There are no hidden posts, secret areas, or disappearing messages. We can review and remove any content at any time.

Pre-publication review

Before content reaches another user's newsfeed it is checked against hash lists of known harmful material — including hashes from NCMEC, the Internet Watch Foundation, CyberTip Canada, Microsoft PhotoDNA, Thorn, StopNCII.org, and our own internal repository — as well as automated classifiers that score images, video, audio, and text, and stop-word filters that block prohibited terms. Content that fails any automated check is held until manual review.

Human review

Content flagged by an automated check, or reported by another user, is reviewed by trained human moderators within 24 hours. Moderators can deactivate content, issue a warning, escalate to specialist review, suspend or terminate the account, file a CyberTipline report with NCMEC for suspected CSAM, and notify law enforcement for other suspected illegal activity.

Periodic re-verification

Creators are subject to ongoing identity checks on a rolling 30-day selfie cycle, with additional checks in high-risk jurisdictions or on flagged accounts. A Creator who fails re-verification loses platform access until the check is completed.

Consequences of sharing prohibited content

Action	Trigger
Content deactivation	Single isolated breach
Warning	Repeat or material breach
Final warning	Serious or repeated breach after a warning
Account suspension	Pending investigation; ongoing serious breach
Account termination	Confirmed serious breach; repeat offender
Earnings forfeiture	Where supported by the Terms of Service
Report to law enforcement	Suspected illegal activity
Report to NCMEC and partner NGOs	Suspected CSAM, NCII, or trafficking
Permanent ban	Where appropriate

Co-authored content

Content that features anyone other than the uploading Creator must satisfy one of: the additional person is tagged as a verified Creator on SwordPay; or the uploading Creator holds a signed release form confirming the additional person is at least 18, has been identity-verified, and consents to appear. Any person featured may withdraw consent at any time by emailing compliance@swordpay.io, and we will remove the content on receipt.

Industry partnerships

SwordPay participates in NCMEC TakeItDown, StopNCII.org, the NCMEC CyberTipline, and the Internet Watch Foundation hash list, and coordinates with industry peers on emerging harm patterns.

Appeals and reporting

If you believe content or an account was actioned in error, see our Appeals Policy. Appeals must be lodged within six months of the decision. Report suspected illegal content using the in-app Report button; report modern slavery, trafficking, CSAM, or NCII to compliance@swordpay.io; general concerns to support@swordpay.io.
